With great Siyata Dishmaya, the School for Children with Hidden Intelligence was founded eighteen years ago by Rabbi Osher Eisemann. From its first five students, to the current enrollment of over 180 children, SCHI has grown quickly, never compromising on its high standards of Special Education. In March 2007, a new, state of the art facility opened its doors. There, children of all ages learn to walk, speak, think for themselves and feed themselves. Dedicated teachers and therapists put their hearts and souls into the students. Disability is conquered through warmth, love and joy.

SCHI services Full Day Academic Program, Adult Day Program, Life Skills Training, Customized Strollers And Walkers, Communication Devices, Computer Classes, Library, Respiratory Therapy, Handicap Accessible Playground, Special Menus Created By A Nutritionist To Accommodate Dietary Needs, Adaptive Physical Education, After-School Cultural Learning Program, Assistive Technology, Consultation With Leading Specialists, Early Intervention Program, Extended School Year Program, Integrated Preschool Program, Job Training Program, Mainstreaming And Transition Program, Nursing Services, Overnight Summer Camp, Personal Hygiene and Fitness Education, Adult Vocational Support, Sibling Support Groups, Parent Workshops, 1:1 Nursing, School Band, Drama, Sunday Recreational Program, Counseling Services, Nutritionist, Advocacy And Case Management, Comprehensive Social Work Services, Intensive Behavioral Support At Home And In School, Referral Services, Group Homes

As a teacher and a mother, I have experienced many Parent Teacher Conferences, and I consider myself quite a pro. Yet when I received the notice for SCHI's upcoming conferences in my Yanky's schoolbag, I felt butterflies in my stomach. The thought of sitting with Yanky's teachers and therapists was overwhelming.

At work, it was my responsibility to inform parents of a child's potential issues and areas of weakness. Now I would be on the other side of the fence.

I tried to prepare myself emotionally as I drove to SCHI. I steeled myself to be strong for what I expected to be a rundown of Yanky's disabilities, what he couldn't do, and where we needed to work harder. As much as I accept and love Yanky for who he is, discussing his weaknesses was always difficult. I tried to convince myself that it was important and necessary for me to do this.

Only a few minutes into the meeting, I realized how mistaken I had been. At SCHI there are no "two sides of the fence". In fact, at SCHI there is no fence at all. It's not teacher versus parent; it's teacher with parent, teacher for the parent.

There was no talk about Yanky's disabilities. Obstacles or problems were presented along with a plan of action and a huge dose of optimism. The goal was clearly to break all barriers and work to give my child a chance to really grow. Communication was open and friendly with lots of warmth, caring and a touch of humor. The teachers and therapists were so positive that I found myself viewing my son in a more positive frame of mind.

I walked out of PTA as an entirely different person than I had entered. My heart felt lighter, I was smiling, and I realized that I had just tasted true nachas: a feeling that until now, I thought was reserved only for my other children.
